What's the Process of Choosing Bathroom Materials?

The first step is to visit a showroom to see all of the materials in person. When designing a bathroom for your residential or commercial space, you don't need to choose the materials in a specific order. However, Floor Factors recommends starting with your flooring or cabinets because they will act as a base for the overall bathroom aesthetic.

When choosing materials, be sure to select products that are water-resistant. You'll also want to consider durability and easiness to clean. Once you've selected your bathroom flooring and cabinets, choose complementary countertops and window coverings.
